PLAIN CLOTHES SLEUTHS TO NAB STREET WALKERS

Bellefonte Women Swoop Down On Council With Demands.

WANT LAWS ENFORCED

Allege That Many Young Women and Men Are Being Ruined—Request That Blue Laws Be Enforced on Stores That Open on Sunday.

Open war on street walkers, selling by stores on Sunday and on laxity in enforcing the anti-cigaret and curfew laws was declared by Bellefonte women when on Monday evening, last, a delegation of about thirty-five marched before Council and filed a most emphatic protest. If any member of Council was in doubt as to the earnestness of the women when they marched in, he had ample time and cause to change his mind before they marched out. Figuratively speaking, the women said that the evils complained of existed and asked of Council :

"What are you going to do about it?"

For a time there was a strained silence. Having said what they were there to say and wanting to know something definite before withdrawing, the thirty-five or more women waited. Finally Dr. M. A. Kirk spoke. He was acting president in the absence of President J. C. Harper, who had left the meeting to catch the night train out of town.

For the women it was explained that plain clothes policemen should be employed to effect the arrest of objectionable women who walk the streets enticing unsuspecting and more or less innocent young men.

"I want to say that I have been a member of Council for a good many years and that this is the most distinguished audience we have ever had," diplomatically spoke up Dr. Kirk. The mere fact that somebody had spoken seemed to relieve the tension. The women smiled, but they didn't forget [illegible] at least two nights ago [illegible] mined looks repeated the query.

"Well, what about it?"

Dr. Kirk again spoke. He applauded ths women for taking a deep interest in public matters and suavely drifted off into a warm argument in favor of more care on the part of citizens in going to the primaries and also attending general elections. The women, however, didn't seem to be much enthused by Dr. Kirk's digression, nor did they appear at all willing to discuss things other than those on their program. Said Dr. Edith Schad :

"Is there a law that makes possible the arrest of street walkers?"

"Well, I'm not so sure about that," smilingly replied Dr. Kirk. "If a person is merely walking the street and not molesting anybody I hardly think there is any law providing for their arrest."

"That's not what I mean," replied.

"Oh, I know what you mean," quickly rejoined Dr. Kirk, "only that, as I have said, I don't know of any law exactly covering the matter."

"Must the women of this town act as informants as to street walkers? Is it not the place of the police to suppress and arrest street walkers? Surely there is some law prohibiting such things," said Mrs. John P. Harris.

"The police know these street walkers, why can't or why don't they arrest them?" was another question hurled at Council.

"The Burgess has more control over the police than anybody else," explained Dr. Kirk. "We appoint them but don't have much power over them."

Dr. Kirk is not a man who is easily frightened, but the questions were coming fast and strong and he looked appealingly to his colleagues, none of whom, however, seemed gifted with the power of speech. So it was up to Dr. Kirk again, and this time he said :

"Well, I think the thing to do is to refer the matter to the Fire and Police Committee, with instructions to report at the next meeting on what may be done and also as to the advisability of employing additional police, in plain clothes."

Dr. Kirk said this so nicely that everybody but the women thought the incident closed. Not so the women, however.

"Who are members of the Fire and Police Committee," one of the women inquired.

Dr. Kirk was delighted to explain. Not being a member of the committee he said that he was more than pleased to explain that two of the members were present at the meeting. Every woman there stared at the little band of Councilmen, and for a moment it was a grand puzzle to figure out just who were the

NEW HOME FOR MOOSE

Bellefonte Lodge Has Fitted up Fine Quarters on Spring Street.

The Bellefonte Lodge of Moose have displayed consummate taste and judgment in fitting up their new club house, on Spring Street. The furnishings are massive and elaborate and the general tone of the house is elegant, but not oppressive. The down stairs part of the house is especially pretty. When one enters he is ushured into two reading rooms. These rooms are most beautifully furnished. The furniture is of mahogany and heavy leather, while an oil painted picture of a wild moose covers one entire side wall. This painting is as fine a piece of art as has ever been seen in Bellefonte.

Behind the reading rooms, one enters a large grill room. This is furnished on the German Rathskeller plan. The upstairs portion of the house is devoted to reading rooms and living quarters. All the furniture is brand new and to say that those big massive leather couches look tempting is putting it mildly.

The Moose have also fitted up their porch with very pretty wicker furniture. The House Committee and other officers have worked faithfully and with great success. It is their intention to open up the club house for public inspection in the very near future. We feel sure that everybody will be wonderfully surprised with the delightful quarters they will find. Long live the Moose.

PHILIPSBURG WINS

Defeats Bellefonte Yesterday—First Victory of Season.

Osceola	8	2	800
Bellefonte	6	4	600
Clearfield	3	5	375
Philipsburg	1	7	125

After defeating the strong Osceola baseball team, at Osceola, on Tuesday, Bellefonte yesterday lost to Philipsburg, 7-5. This marked Philipsburg's first victory in the Mountain League. Reports from Philipsburg were to the effect that the team had been greatly strengthened for the game with Bellefonte.

Clearfield and Osceola did not play yesterday, as scheduled. Clearfield played at Tyrone, losing 6--0. Osceola defeated Houtzdale 3--1.

Osceola continues to lead the league, with Bellefonte still in second place and Philipsburg at the tail end.

Bellefonte now has a good team, the members are working harmoniously and with a little strengthening at one or two points will compare favorably with any other club in the league. An additional pitcher and some strengthening at third base, with a man who can not only field well but who can bat well, would greatly improve the chances for Bellefonte taking the lead and keeping it. Osceola has an especially fine team. Yesterday's score at Philipsburg is indication that Charley Rowland's team is soon to get up with the leaders.

Tomorrow Clearfield plays Osceola, at Osceola, and Philipsburg plays Bellefonte, at Bellefonte. The game here will be called promptly at 2:15 o'clock. The schedule of games, as completed to August 1, follows:

Third Party Convention.

A call has been issued for a convention of so-called independents, at Philadelphia, on Thursday, July 28, to nominate a "Third Party" ticket. Centre County will be entitled to one delegate. The basis of representation is one half Republican and one half Democratic. Centre County should, therefore, send to the convention some fellow who is one-half Republican and one-half Democrat. The "Centre Democrat", which has left the Democratic party, is slated to be the official organ of the fifth-wheel movement in this county.

FIND UNIQUE RECORD OF OLD TOWN CLOCK

Removed This Week After Serving Faithfully For 55 Years.

INSTALLED BY COUNCIL

County Commissioners Half Century Ago Granted President of Town Council Privilege of Winding This Quaint Old Time Piece.

Just when the handsome and modern town clock is being installed in the tower at the remodeled Court House, an interesting and unique record has been unearthed in the shape of an official record recalling how the old clock, removed this week, was put in place 55 years ago. On Monday afternoon the old clock stopped its eventful career winding up, or rather slowing down, at 3.30 o'clock. It had been allowed to run down, its closing hours being marked by uneven tolling and striking of the hours. Then the old time piece was dismantled and removed to make way for the more modern self-winding clock, which will be illuminated to show the hour at night, and also so arranged as to be the master clock of numerous smaller clocks placed at different points in the Court House.

Telling the history of the old town clock is the following official record, embodied in the minutes of the meetings of the County Commissioners back in 1855, and taken off the records by a representative of "The Republican:"

"November 26, 1855 - Commissioners met, full board present. Gave to President of the Town Council of the Borough of Bellefonte (Mr. Shoemaker) an instrument in writing, granting to said Council the privilege of putting a clock in the dome of the Court House, and of going in and out to attend to it, henceforward and forever."

The County Commissioners who were in office at the time President Shoemaker of the Town Council was given the privilege of going up to the Court House and winding the town clock, were Jonathan Hoberman, Wm. A. Davidson and Henry Keller. George Livingston was clerk to the County Commissioners at the time.

With what diligence President Shoemaker attended to the winding of the clock is not recited in the minutes of the County Commissioners. That the old clock was well cared for, however, is demonstrated in the fact that it remained in good condition for over half a century.

SAYS HE KNOWS NO LAW AGAINST FIGHT PICTURES

Burgess Bower Not Sure They Could be Prohibited Here.

MINISTERS ARE OPPOSED

Announce They Will Vigorously Fight Any Attempt to Exhibit Here Films Showing Johnson--Jeffries Battle at Reno.

The Johnson-Jeffries fight pictures will not be exhibited in Bellefonte if the ministers of the several churches in Centre County can find a way to prevent it. The ministers are planning to take steps to this end if any attempt is made to show the pictures in Bellefonte. One move will be to appeal to Burgess John J. Bower.

Burgess Bower is not so sure that there is any law prohibiting exhibiting the pictures. Anyhow, he says that he will not cross the bridge until he comes to it, or until it is brought to him. He said :

"I shall not cross that bridge until I come to it. I do not know that any attempt will be made to exhibit the Johnson-Jeffries pictures in Bellefonte. I haven't looked into the matter, but offhand I should say that I do not know of any law prohibiting showing the pictures."

If the pictures are brought to Bellefonte they will not be exhibited at the Scenic. There are two reasons for this. One is that Manager Clayton Brown says that he wouldn't exhibit them. The second is that he couldn't if he wanted to, his lease with the Petrikin Hall management prohibiting exhibitions of that sort. The only other place where the pictures could be exhibited is Garman's Opera House.

The ministers, however, are redhot against allowing the fight pictures to be exhibited in Bellefonte. Said Rev. P. d W. Barry, president of the ministerium :

"The ministerium is unalterably [illegible] showing the fight pictures to be shown here. At its best, prize fighting is demoralizing and if the pictures are shown at Bellefonte you may be sure that it will not be the fault of any of the ministers."

Rev. Dr. J. Allison Platts, pastor of the Presbyterian church, was equally emphatic. He said :

"I know that I have the backing of every clean, honest man when I say that the prize fight game is rotten to its core. If the pictures are ever advertised for appearance here, you may be sure that I would most strenously fight them."

Charged With Desertion.

Frank Beck, an employee of a local livery stable, was given a hearing before Justice Henry D. Brown on last Saturday evening charged with wife desertion. The hearing developed that Beck had left his wife and family some time ago. When questioned the defendant answered that he would not live with his wife as he couldn't get along with her. After some deliberation Justice Brown bound Beck over for court in $300 bail, in default of which he was committed to jail.

Chairman Harry Keller Honored.

Republican County Chairman Harry Keller has been honored with an appointment as a member of the Notification Committee which will formally advise John K. Tener, Republican nominee for Governor, and his colleagues on the ticket, of the action of the recent Republican State convention. The notification meeting will be held at the Americus Club, in Pittsburg, on July 23. Senator W. E. Crow, who was chairman of the convention, will preside over the meeting.

TO THE PUBLIC.

"The Republican" has just closed its first year under the new management and control. We feel that we owe it to ourpatrons and friends to give a brief report on what we have accomplished in this period. We have transformed an old newspaper into a bright, newsy, aggressive newspaper. We have established a job printing department which for excellence and quality of work has no peer in Centre County. Our circulation in Centre County, in one brief year, has been increased 71 percent. In Bellefonte, alone "The Republican" circulation has reached the 300 mark. We feel that we have the right to be justly proud of this record of achievement. We recognize that we owe our successful year to our faithful effort to give to the public a truthful, honest, enterprising and interesting newspaper. In full measure we appreciate that much of our success is due to the loyal support accorded by the people of Centre County. We extend our sincere thanks and the assurance that our aim will be to make "The Republican" better, brighter and newsier each week during the year to come.

THE PUBLISHER.

TWO BIG NEWS FEATURES

"The Republican" Will Present "The Goose Girl" and "Back to the Farm."

For several months the management of "The Republican" has been closely studying the newest stories offered for sale by the large publishing houses. We have been waiting to get the best piece of fiction to be had. In line with our motto that nothing is too good for readers of "The Republican", we were determined that the serial to be selected should be the most charmingly written and intensely interesting to be found in the market. We intended this serial to be a pleasant snrprise to our many readers. It is to be a double surprise, however, for instead of purchasing but one serial story we have a second, both of which will appear at the same in "The Republican."

Beginniug with next week "The Republican" will present Harold McGrath's very best romance, "The Goose Girl." Literary critics pronounce this even better than "Graustark" or "Truxton King," both of which were exceedingly popular. The opening chapters will appear next week so be sure that you receive your copy of the paper if you are a subscriber, and if you are not a subscriber you will act wisely in becoming enrolled as one in time to read the complete story, as it appears from week to week. See the beautiful illustration on Page 7 in this week's paper.

The second delightful surprise unfolded is the announcement that "The Republican" has purchased the strikingly interesting and instructive series of articles entitled, "Back to the Farm," by C. V. Gregory. The first installment appears on Page 6. There are eighteen separate articles to this series and they will be published exclusively in "The Republican." Mr. Gregory is the author of numerous interesting articles bearing on topics close to the heart of the farmer. He has written, among other things, "Home Course in Live Stock Farming" "Making Money on the Farm," and "Home Course in Modern Agriculture." In his article in "The Republican" this week Mr. Gregory discusses "The Growth of the Cities and the Increased Cost of Living." Next week in "The Republican" he will write on "Restoring the Belance Back to the Land." Each week for eighteen weeks Mr. Gregory will have a different and entirely new subject. Each will be well worth the cost of one year's subscription. By preserving each of Mr. Gregory's articles subscribers will have on hand an unusually interesting contribution to their library.

Remember that Mr. Gregory's articles and the serial story, "The Goose Girl", appear exclusively in "The Republican". Watch for next week's paper for the opening chapters of "The Goose Girl."

An Interesting Photograph.

Many year ago there were three brothers named Andrew Gregg, John and Roland Curtin. They were youngsters who played in and about Bellefonte, later growing up to manhood and attaining distinction in one way or another. One day, early this week, three great-grand-children of the three brothers were in Bellefonte and their parents decided to have a group photograph taken in honor of the occasion. The three children were John Curtin, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. John Curtin, of West Linn Street; Roland Curtin, a son of Captain and Mrs. Roland I. Curtin, who are spending a few weeks at the former's home, on Curtin Street, and Andrew Gregg Curtin, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Mac. Curtin, of Pittsburg.

At a meeting of the Bellefonte School Board, on Monday evening, last, Haupt Brothers were awarded the contract for laying the concrete walk in front and along two sides of the new High School building, at Allegheny and Linn Streets. The award was for about $700.

DROWNED AT ARMOR'S GAP

Young Italian Falls Into Reservoir on Sunday Afternoon.

John Petroneo, an Italian aged about 20 years, was drowned on Sunday in the supply reservoir, at Armor's Gap, one mile north of Bellefonte. Petroneo was sitting along the bank of the reservoir, washing his feet, when he suddenly tumbled forward into the water, which is about twelve feet deep. Several other foreigners were present at the time, but none of the number could swim, and while at one time they had Petroneoal most to the edge of the bank they were unable to pull him out. Petroneo's body was soon recovered.

An inquest was held on Sunday evening, with Squire W. H. Musser actiag for Coroner S. M. Huff. The testimony was to the effect that the drowing was entirely accidental. The coroner's jury was composed of H. R. Krape, Oliver Witmer, Daniel Gordon, Wilson Heaton, Toner Aikey and S. A. Keefer.

Petroneo was buried on Tuesday morning, interment being made in St. John's Catholic cemetery.

Boy Falls from Tree.

On last Friday morning about 8 o'cock, John Rosenhoover, the 13-year-son of Robert Rosenhoover, of Spring Creek, climbed to the top of the large willow tree in front of the home of Ferdinand Beezer, on Spring Creek. While perched on the highest limb of the tree, it broke and young Rosenhoover dropped to the ground adistance of over 30feet. He was picked up unconscious by William Beezer, who was working at the time at "The Willows." The little fellow fell flat on his stomach and sustained quite serious internal injuries.

EXPECT BIG YIELD OF ALL CROPS IN COUNTY

All Signs Point to Golden Harvest of Grain, Say Farmers.

A BANNER APPLE CROP

State Orchard Inspector Foster Writes Interesting Report for "The Republican" After Tour of Inspection in Centre County.

Unless some unlooked for emergency should arise, Centre County will this year yield a banner crop of virtually everything planted. That it will be the "best crop in years" is the universal belief of farmers and fruit growers.

While the corn crop has suffered somewhat because of the ravages of the cut worm, the yield promises to be far above the average. The wheat crop is reported to be in fine condition and the yield will be far in excess of that in several years.

Nothing but encouraging reports are received in regard to the fruit crop in the county. T. C. Foster, the State Orchard Inspector assigned to this section of Pennsylvania, has just completed a tour of inspection of Centre County orchards. He reports to "The Republican" that the fruit crop will be all that could be desired. At the request of "The Republican," Mr. Foster has written a report telling of what he found in Centre County orchards. In this report Mr. Foster says:

"Various reports have been received regarding the probable fruit crop throughout the county. Notwithstanding the late frosts and the season of cold, wet weather which prevailed during the blossoming period of the apple, especially, there is yet to be found by careful observation a large percentage of orchards that give evidence that when the harvesting of the fruit crop really takes place Centre County will present a good showing.

"Seldom do we find in recent years instances where all kinds of fruit yield a bountiful crop in any one year, nor do we find all parts of a county favored alike, as will be the case this year. Perhaps one of the largest crops of apples in view this year in the vicinity of Bellefonte is to be found on the old Haupt farm, located on a high elevation about three miles Southeast of town. The Baldwin apple appears to thrive exceedingly well in this locality, and it seems an assured fact that at least some individual trees will yield ten barrels of fruit.

"Another orchard in the vicinity of State College, which has been known to produce five hundred bushels of marketable apples in a single season, is, too, on the list of honor this year.

"Reports from the several valleys throughout the county all tend to strengthen our faith in the realization of a bounteous harvest of the 'King of Fruits.' A visit to the large commercial orchard of Colonel W. Fred Reynolds establishes the fact that peaches can be grown with profit in this county and that the old-time idea that the peach tree was of short life, and at best could only yield two crops of fruit, has not only been discredited in this particular case but that as the industry becomes better understood the possibility of prolonging its life and reaping larger profits are now within the reach of those who may be peculiarly fitted to engage in this very attractive branch of horticulture.

"Peach trees at nine years of age in Col. Reynolds' orchard were so full of fruit this year that it was found necessary to do a great deal of thinning out of the fruit so as to make possible the greater perfection of those left on the trees to mature.

"The fruit growers of the county should not fail to recognize the importance of getting together in their own organization and thus assist one another in establishing the fruit growing industry in their home county that will mark a new era in horticultural history. Remember the words of one of our illustrious citizens, who said, 'If I were to die tomorrow, I would plant a tree today.'

"It is a significant fact that a large number of interested persons are calculating on setting out orchards next spring. May the good work go on. The orchards under the care of the State Division of Zoology are showing marked improvement."

Cedron Seed Plant.

In Central America many natives are gathering the seeds of this plant, Cedron Seed, a rare medicine that has valuable curative powers. But few drug stores carry this seed, owing to the high cost of the article.

This country is a large consumer of this costly seed because it enters into the famous catarrh remedy, Peruna, sold the world over.

KITCHEN WARE

How to Keep Many Utensils Looking Just Like New.

Most people seem to realize the best way of cleaning silver, but they are by no means so sure of their ground when it comes to other metals and compositions of this nature; and for this reason, the following receipes are given, all of them being well tested. Iron saucepans should be cleaned as soon after use as possible. If anything greasy has been cooked in them put in soda and water and boil this up. When starchy food has been cooked in them, however, steep them in cold water, as hot water makes the starchy material stick to the pan. The soot should be removed from the bottom and sides with an old knife.

When this process has been carried out, clean both the inside and outside with soap, using a brush, and dipping this in silver sand; then rinse thoroughly, first in hot and then in cold water, and leave the pan to dry in a warm place, upside down.

Enameled pans should be steeped, the soot removed and then washed with hot water, any burnt parts being removed by rubbing them with a coarse flannel dipped in salt and broken-up eggshells; then rinse well and dry inside and out. Galvanized iron baths and the like should be rinsed out with hot water and soda directly after use. To clean them thoroughly, scrub them well with soap and water, to which soda has been added; dry and then rub with a piece of house flannel dipped first in paraffin and then in silver sand or powdered bath brick till bright; then rinse first in hot and then in cold water, and let it dry in a draught to remove the smell of paraffin.

One of the best methods is to clean tin with whiting mixed to a stiff paste with water of ammonia; only all the powder must be brushed off when dry. Another methodi s to slice down very thinly four ounces of yellow soap and pour over this one quart of cold water, and allow it to stand till next day to dissolve; then add a pound of the best whiting, bring it all to boiling point, keeping it well stirred, so as to insure its all being properly mixed; then leave it till cold, when you add two ounces of spirits of hartshorn, and keep it in tightly corked bottles. This keeps almost indefinitely, but must be well shaken before use.

Zinc must be first thoroughly well washed with warm soap and water, then well dried, and next carefully rubbed all over with a cloth dipped in either paraffin or turpentine. If liked, a little paraffin may be used with the whiting.

WOMEN IN POLITICS

They Take the Hustings for Their Husbands in England.

A general election in Great Britain, the opening of a new Parliament and a political crisis always serve to bring out a fact of supreme interest to the dealer in Anglo-American "comparisons"—I mean the prominence of women, the altogether more active and influential part they play in the public life of England as compared with that of America.

One must of course, in this connection remember how very largely rural existence in England still revolves round the placid feudal center, how instructive is the attitude of subordination on the part of the laborers and small farmers toward the gentry of the neighborhood; how great is the power of election and dispossession which the leasehold system places in the hands of the landlord, and how deeply woven in the texture of rural life is the notion that the mistress of the "big house" should be the lady bountiful, if not the lady despot, of her district. All this at election time gives a woman of zeal and intelligence a rare opportunity. She knows all within a radius of twenty or thirty miles; she has spent her life among them, organizing charities, nursing associations, bazaars, flower shows and social entertainments; she has cared for the sick and destitute; she is one of the institutions of the neighborhood, and nine times out of ten, in addition, is a capable, delightful, warm-hearted lady. When, therefore, she takes the field as a political canvasser it is with all the advantages that her wealth and position her social and philanthropic activities, and the inherent unscrupulousness of women in matters of politics can give her.

From anything of this kind American women are excluded by the unhappy separation of politics from society. A senator's wife may be a considerable personage in Washington, but she is so only on the condition that she does not interfere in politics. The bosses and the machine have between them killed the very possibility of a political salon. American women, again, as a sex are only drawn toward public affairs when some great moral or humanitarian issue is at stake. Vague battlings with the railways and the trusts do not interest them, and the mercenary atmosphere of most American politics simply revolt them. So it is that, as in all republics, women in America are forced out of politics. Even in the ceremonial side, where their English sisters cut a brilliant figure, their part is distinctly subordinate. They are never really initiated into the secrets of the game, and they exert little influence over those who play it and none whatever over those for whose mystification it is played. And both men and women prefer to have it so.

NO MORE PLANTATIONS

Passing of an Institution in Which South Had Great Pride.

In the antebellum days the pride of the gentleman planter—there were few farmers in those days—was in the vastness of his acreage. Those estates were not farms, they were "plantations"; they were operated by the "gentry," and they made the agricultural south of those days. It was a common thing to find one planter's possessions which would require a goodly part of a day to cover on horseback. Many of us today recall scenes of the old family plantation, look back upon the time when life in the country seemed more given to entertainment, hospitality, to the joys of living, than to the pursuits of farming as an enterprise. Market conditions and the fluctuation of prices did not enter into the schemes of life then as they do now; it was enough to know that there was a crop, a big crop, growing, and it would not have to be marketed before it was harvested. In those days plantation life drifted along under the motto, "sufficient unto the day are the pleasures thereof," and the planters enjoyed life.

But, like other things which go to make up the present age, agriculture and its conditions have changed the old plantation is passing, the Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle says. They were a characteristic of South Caroline, and largely, too, of Georgia, but there are very few of them left.

In Georgia, Burke County, Washington County, Greene County, and many others were known for their large country estates plantations---in the days "before the war," but now they have dropped out of mind; they do not occupy the place of the day they once did, because they themselves exist no longer. This is a day of farms, small farms, and where one planter pursued his agricultural methods, conducted his operation then, there are now half a dozen busy farmers----men who have got time to farm the numerous acres the "planter" prided himself on possessing.

These memories of bygone days and the realization of what a changed and busy world has followed are freshened by the announcement in an item from Cordele, Ga., that one of the oldest, one of the most notable of the old southern plantations, will shortly, too, be only a memory----the "Egypt of the Confederacy" is to pass out. The old Huguenin plantation, around which there hinges antebellum and war-time history, is to be cut up into small farms. The "plantation" of one man is to be turned into 1200 farms.

The Cordele news item, an interesting one, says: "It was learned here yesterday that the owners of th[illegible] plantation consisting of 12,000 acres [illegible] valuable farms lands, located about eight miles from Cordele, just across the Flint River in Summer County, is to be divided into small farms of 100 acre lots for the purpose of selling them to North Georgia farmers. This is the oldest and the largest plantation in the state, having been occupied by Capt. Huguenin during the war, and it embraced a part of the large territory in this section known as the 'Egypt of the Confederacy.' Many of the supplies used by the Southern soldiers were raised by the slaves belonging to Capt. Huguenin on this plantation.

Education of Farmer's Daughter.

According to a St. Louis newspaper, one of the officials of the farmers' convention there expressed the opinion that farmers' daughters should not be educated too highly, particularly in literature, art, music and those things which make for intellectual enjoyment and refinement, but that they should be educated in agriculture and domestic science. He declared that a large majority of the farmers of the South have an income of but $600 a year, and an educated girl makes a poor wife for such a man.

But why educate a girl at all in agriculture and domestic science to become the wife of a man who is so ignorant, shiftless and unscientific as to make a farm produce so little profit in a year? She would be entirely out of his class if she knew anything at all of the science of agriculture. As for domestic science, she would only annoy him with it.

So long as men are content to remain in ignorance of scientific agriculture or are too shiftless to apply its principles if known, and are content to get out of their land only a quarter of what it should produce, they will demand wives willing to live the lives that must be lived as their helpmates.

But the farmers of the South—and everywhere else—must get out of the $600 class, and the only way to get out of it is to educate themselves out. Education would not only give them the knowledge by which they could rise to a higher income earning power, but it would make them ashamed not to do so.

Perhaps the strongest factor in pulling them up will be their own wives, or those who might be their wives if they fitted themselves to deserve them.

It may be temporarily embarrassing for the farmers' daughters to be educated and make it difficult for the man willing to live in the old rut of ignorance and shiftless farming methods to get a wife to match him, but the embarrassment will be productive of good, for when a young farmer sees how hard it is for an ignorant man to get a wife, he will begin to qualify himself. CURED TO STAY CURED

How a Bellefonte Citizen Found Compelte Freedom From Kidney Troubles.

If you suffer from backache—
From urinary disorders—
From any disease of the kidneys,
Be cured to stay cured.
Doan's Kidney Pills make lasting cures.
Bellefonte people testify.
Here's one case of it:

Hiram Fetterhoff, 28 W. Bishop St., Bellefonte, Pa., says:" I have no hesitation in reccommending Doan's Kidney Pills, knowing them to be a first-class kidney remedy. For some time I was annoyed by irregular passages of the kidney secretions and reading that Doan's Kidney Pills were a specific for kidney complaint, I procured a supply at Green's Pharmacy Co. Their use relieved me and I am now in much better condition. Doan's Kidney Pills are certainly an effective kidney medicine." (Statement given October 21, 1907.) No cause for complaint since. When Mr. Fetterhoff was interviewed on November 22, 1909 he said:" I willingly confirm my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. The relief they brought me has been permanent and I have had no need of a kidney medicine during the past two years."

The Connoisseurs.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., at a dinner in New York, admitted that he was not a gourmet.

"These fat, red-faced men," he said, "only amuse me. They know all the vintage years of champagne, Bordeaux and Bourgogne. They differentiate learnedly between California peach-fed and Southern hominy-fed hogs. They compare the flavors of the teal, the mallard and the canvasback.

"But I, listening, only smile. It all reminds me so vividly of two little boys in the country.

"These two little boys were smoking, when one was taken suddenly and violently ill. The other said:

"'It's queer that this tobacco hurts you. It's made of very good corn silk.'

"'But, you see,' groaned the other. 'I'm used to nothin' but fine grape leaves.'"

Itching piles provoke profanity, but profanity won't cure them. Doan's Ointment cures them. Doan's Ointment cures itching, bleeding or protruding piles after years of suffering. At any drug store.

THE RICHEST DOG

Has Gold-Studded Collar to His Account in an Alaskan Bank.

There is a man at Nome whose town residence is near the Congregational parsonage and whom I found to be a good neighbor. Although, writes L. L. Woods, in Our Dumb Animals, he never came to hear me preach, he was and is a warm friend of mine because of my well-known defense of the defenseless. He is an ardent member of the Alaskan Humane Society of Nome, and a great friend of the dogs, who are also very fond of him.

His own dogs, of which he has several are fed on the best the market affords and sleep at night on beds furnished with mattresses. His favorite and inseparable companion is a large dog known as Billy, who has earned the right of freedom from toil and achieved a reputation for sagacity in saving the lives of numerous miners who were lost in Arctic blizzards.

On one occasion he was piloting his master and a companion to their cabin in the mountains. The companion was confident that the dog was misleading them, and kicking the intelligent brute, struck out in the opposite direction. The master, though equally bewildered, trusted to his dumb and faithful guide, who soon led him to his cabin. Whereupon, having seen his master safe and comfortable, the sagacious animal set off of his own accord to rescue the man who had spurned his kind offices with a brutal kick, and, contrary to that revenge which too often appears in human requitals, soon brought the freezing man to the warm cabin and then laid himself down, content with having performed a humane act.

But the rescued man, whose life had been saved by the magnanimous conduct of the great half-human, though half wolf dog, wanting to make some amends for his own indiscretion and unkindness, had made for the noble animal a beautiful collar studded. This unique collar, such as probably no other dog ever possessed, is in the safety deposit vaults of one of the Nome banks, where Billy has a bank account and enjoys the distinction of being the wealthiest dog in his own name in existence, and which deposit, his master says, will never be disturbed until it is used to give Billy an honored burial for his magnanimous and life-saving deeds

The Third Party Ticket.

After more or less noise and much self-praise, the party kickers who have been advocating a "Third Ticket," on Monday issued a call for a State convention, to be held at Philadelphia, on Thursday, July 28.

Examination of the list of signers to the "call" discloses that the promoters are about the same old crowd who tried to defeat Edwin S. Stuart for Governor in 1906. This fact in itself should be sufficient to brand the outfit as unworthy of intelligent consideration at the hands of the honest, sincere Republicans of Centre County.

Thus far the "Third Party" movement has been nothing short of an unseemly scramble over the question of putting a Republican kicker or a Democratic kicker at the head of the column for Governor. A few men trying to get something out of it about sums up the situation.

By the Democratic kickers it is maintained that unless a Democrat is named for Governor the movement will receive no support from Democratic voters. Republican kickers, they argue, will vote for a Democrat, but Democrats will not vote for a Republican, whether he be of the kicking brand or of the old womanish, peaceable sort. Hence, they add, nominate a Democrat by all means. What they had in mind but did not say was that a Democratic Governor would throw out of office all Republicans, supplant them with Democrats and work his administration to the limit to building up the Democratic party in Pennsylvania.

The kicking Republicans say it is immaterial to them whether the nominee for Governor be a Republican or a Democrat. Meanwhile they go ahead finding reasons why a Democrat should not be nominated. Its the old seesaw game of "I'll tickle you if you'll tickle me", with each side of ticklers trying to put one over on the other. Of course the tickling is done under the guise of reform and the public is invited to participate, help finance the scheme and get nothing out of it.

If one stops to examine the history of ninety-nine percent of the kickers, this year or any other year, it will be found that at some time or other they were the recipients of honors and offices at the hands of their respective party. They, in most cases, become kickers when they see somebody else winning honors, or when they aspire to control and fail. They call their kicking "reform."

The "Third Party" is pretty much the same aggregation that tried to wreck the Republican party in 1906, and to all appearances it is due for pretty much the same experience in November – and that's a good licking.

Want New Band Uniforms.

Members of the City Band are circulating a subscription paper among the citizens of Bellefonte, asking for contributions toward the purchase of new uniforms. The City Band proposes giving weekly open air concerts in Bellefonte during the next few months and the new uniforms are greatly needed. It is to be deplored that the management of the Business Men's Picnic Association did not give the City Band the assignment to play at the Business Men's picnic, at Hecla Park, this year. This would have helped the boys purchase their new uniforms and the music would have proved just as satisfactory. A little support to home institutions is a pretty good thing.

Plain Clothes Sleuths.

two members of the committee whom the women wanted to know more about.

"The two members of the committee present are Mr. Grimm and Mr. Sheffer," spoke up Dr. Kirk.

Dr. Kirk looked to be immensely pleased. Mr. Grimm twirled a piece of paper between his fingers and Mr. Sheffer studied an imaginary spot on the table.

"Well, we'll see the committee," remarked one of the women, aside, and the look of resignation on the faces of Mr. Grimm and Mr. Sheffer was one of sublime resignation.

Rev. Dr. A. M. Schmidt, who had introduced the delegation, concluded that pretty nearly everything necessary and otherwise had been said, and thanking Council for its cordial greeting and respectful hearing, headed the procession out of the room.

It was when the delegation marched into Council chamber that Dr. Schmidt explained its mission. He grouped the complaints into three classes. First, he said that the women were protesting against stores being open on Sunday. He asked that Council enforce the law. It was finally decided that the old Blue Laws covered Snuday-selling and nothing more was said about it.

Next Dr. Schmidt talked about the smoking of cigarets by minors. He said that he had on several occasions witnessed boys 10, 12 and 14 years of age smoking cigarets in front of the Scenic Theatre. Policemen could catch such boys, he added, but it was rather undignified for citizens to go chasing up the alleys after youngsters, especially youngsters who were able to get a move on.

Dr. Kirk agreed that such a spectacle would be lacking in dignity, if not in humor, and finally the subject gave way to something else. Dr. Schmidt asked for a more rigid enforcement of the curfew law, but Dr. Kirk didn't comment on this and there was, consequently, no argument. Dr. Schmidt then got down to the real subject on the women's mind, that of street walking.

Whether or not plain clothes police are to be appointed to arrest street walkers, unless they keep on walking, will be determined at the next meeting of Council.

Amusing If Not Instructive.

The little band of Democratic would-be leaders in Centre County are having all kinds of sleepless nights trying to figure out the welfare of the State and nation. The incident is of interest not to the Democrats over the county who are not bothering themselves about it, but because of the serious manner in which the would-be leaders take themselves.

The "Centre Democrat", Sheriff Walker, County Chairman Zerby and one or two others constitute the head and front, and also the tail, of the "Third Party" movement in Centre County. Among themselves, by themselves and unto themselves, they are waging a gallant fight for----themselves.

The "Democratic Watchman" is on the other side of the fence. It applauds the Allentown ticket and heartily approves the nomination of Grim for Governor. Turning up its delicate nose at the "Centre Democrat's" little squad of near-leaders, the "Watchman" indignantly inquires:

"Why should Grim withdraw from the ticket?"

Such a foolish question. Of course Mr. Grim should withdraw. Has not the "Centre Democrat" demanded it? Has not Sheriff Walker said that he should? Does not County Chairman Zerby stand as the prime minister of the Third partyists in the county? Of course Mr. Grim should withdraw. How can he hold out against such formidable odds?

We extend sympathy to Jim. Cornelly, the best politician in the Democratic bunch. Incidentally, we would be willing to pay space rates for Jim's private and candid opinion of the near-leaders.

Riding on Free Transportation.

Jim Lucas and Bill Leathers, of Howard, Centre county, are resting comfortably in the town's bastile after riding from their home town to Tyrone on their nerve. Lucas went into Howard and claimed he was instructed to swear a lot of deputies and bring them to Tyrone to be used in case of a strike. The big fellow was fortunate enough to secure about a dozen men who were willing to do this kind of work and started for for Tyrone, stating that he had transportation for the bunch. Shortly west of Howard Conductor Hicks demanded the transportation or money for the fares and both were refused by Lucas. Mr. Hicks and the brakeman ordered the men from the train but never an inch did they move. At Milesburg all of the would be deputies but Lucas and Leathers got off the train and remained at Kohlbeckers while the two men arrested came on to Tyrone. At the station they were met by P. R. R. Policemen A. R. Barr, Fred and John Giles who took good care of the train riders. Tyrone Herald.

CO. L RETURNS

Bellefonte Soldiers Arrive Home, Tired After Strenous Camp.

Thoroughly tired and convinced beyond all doubt that the life of the "sojer" is no snap, now that the United States Army regulations are in force, Company L returned from the Gettysburg camp on Monday afternoon. The universal belief of the boys was that the camp was the most strenuous experienced in many years. Nevertheless, the Centre County soldiers made a creditable showing and all returned home in the best of health and spirits.

The boys broke camp early Sunday evening but did not get away from Gettysburg until 6 o'clock Monday morning. The Twelfth Regiment, of which Company L is a part, did not elect a colonel while at camp. Friends of Captain Hugh S. Taylor predict his election as colonel in the near future.

While at camp Company L entertained quite a few friends who called. Sergeant Claude Smith entertained a party composed of Misses Marion Meyers and Beulah Fortney and Professor Isenberg, of State College, and Miss B. E. Paul, of Gordon, Pa. On Wednesday Edmund Hayes and J. Homer Decker entertained at dinner Misses Belle Fink and Helen Wagner, of Hanover.

Shot Through Hand.

Russell Smith, the 14-year-old son of Witmer Smith, was accidentally shot through the hand on Monday evening last while playing with a crowd of boys on the mountain side, near Centre Hall. Russell has been visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Smith at Centre Hall all summer and on last Monday evening he went out with several other boys to shoot mark with a small flobert rifle. In some manner the rifle was accidentally discharged and young Smith cried out that his hand was shot. On examination the bullet was found to have gone through the palm of the hand. No bones were broken and luckily no arteries were torn. It is only a question of a short time when Master Russell will be perfectly well again, and then we do envy those boyhood joys that are in store for him, when he recounts to all the other youngsters how it feels to get shot through the hand.

Schools Open September.

The Bellefonte public schools will open September 5, 1910. A banner year is expected. The vacancy in the High School's corps of teachers has been filled by the election of Joseph R. Schultz, of Sunbury, who will take charge of the science department and athletics. Mr. Schultz comes very highly recommended from Jeanette, Pa., where he has been assistant principal of the high school.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other disease put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by E. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. SPLENDID SCHOOL CATALOG

Life at State Normal Vividly Shown—Fall Term Opens Sept. 13th.

One of the most beautiful, complete and interesting school catalogs ever published is that of The Pennsylvania State Normal School for 1910-1911 a book of 224 pages, illustrated in colors with paintings and decorative designs by the students and with hundreds of photographs depicting school life.

Every detail of student days is covered both in text and in picture. The courses of study, the requirements of the various classes, the estimate of costs, are all clearly set forth. One of the most impressive features of this exceptionally striking catalog is the evidence, both in picture and text, of how well this school at Indiana, Pa., provides for the healthful comfort and recreation of its students. The intimate views of the young people in their rooms, of social groups in cozy corners and upon the campus are as attractive to thoughtful parents as to prospective students.

No catalog could give a clearer, more complete picture of modern school life than this one. It leaves a definite impression of healthful, well-rounded days of work and recreation.

The fall term at Pennsylvania State Normal School begins September 13th.

CENTRE COUNTY PICNIC

Big Meeting to be Held in Altoona Thursday Evening.

On Thursday evening at eight o'clock another meeting of Centre Countians residing in Blair county will be held at the Palace Hotel on Green avenue, Altoona, at which the grounds committee appointed by Chairman George Smith will make their report, says Tuesday's "Tyrone Herald." The Altoona and upper-county delegations are anxious to come to Stevens' Park, Tyrone, and of course the Centre county people living in this section of the county will welcome them with pleasure. The date and other arrangements will be announced also at this meeting. In former years the Centre county picnics have been held in Glasgow's woods near Bellwood, but the water supply at this pleasant resort has given out and it is necessary to find another park. Stevens' park is the ideal place for a reunion of this kind and no doubt a large number will attend from Centre county, and if the committee is fortunate in securing Ex-Governor James A. Beaver, Judge Ellis L. Orvis and Judge Thomas J. Baldrige for speakers on this occasion, no doubt many who are not Ex-Centre Countains, will attend.

Only a short time is to be taken up with speech making while the balance of the day will be turned over to sports of all discription and old fashioned dances, such as the Virginia reel, square dance, lancers and some round dances. There will be running races, dashes, high jumps, pitching of quoits, boating, band concerts and all kinds of amusements to please the people, besides meeting old acquaintances.

Every Centre countian living in this community is asked to attend this meeting on Thursday evening at the Palace Hotel in Altoona. The proprietor of this splendid hostelry is an old Centre countian, Joe Kabella, formerly of Bellefonte.

"BACK TO THE FARM"

I.—The Growth of the Cities and the Increased Cost of Living.

By C. V. GREGORY,

Author of "Home Course In Live Stock Farming," "Making Money on the Farm," "Home Course In Modern Agriculture," Etc.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

THE high cost of living, or the "cost of high living," as James J. Hill puts it, is a subject which just now is engrossing the attention of the entire nation. The cost of the necessaries of life has been steadily increasing since 1896. The symptoms have been viewed with increasing alarm by nearly all classes. Within the last year the matter has reached an acute stage. The average increase in the cost of necessities from Jan. 1, 1909, to Jan 1, 1910, was 11.7 per cent. The increase over July 1, 1896, was 61 per cent.

The wage and salary earners in the cities have seen the "bread line" gradually drawing closer. The margin between income and expenses, narrow at best, has shrunk to the vanishing point. All this while newspapers have been shouting prosperity, forgetful of the old maxim that "the real prosperity of a nation is the citizen's margin of saving."

Whatever the cause of this increase in the cost of necessities and comforts, there are but two ways in which the citizen as an individual can meet it. The first is to increase his income, and the second is to lower his standard of living. The wage earner, banded together with his fellows in a union, has been able to increase his scale of wages to some extent, though not nearly enough to fill the gap between income and expenses. The wage earner who does not belong to a union has profited to some extent by the general rise in wages, though not so much as the union man.

USING CORN FOR FUEL IN 1896.

The salaried man has borne the hardest brunt of the rising prices. He belongs to no union, and his demands for increased pay have brought little response.

All classes that are compelled to work for a living have had to turn to the other alternative in a greater or less degree. They have been forced to lower their standard of living. The first item to be attacked is the food supply. Russell Sage once said, "As the cost of living increases the use of meat decreases, the proportion of dark rooms increases and child labor becomes plentiful." Less meat means poorer nourishment, less resistance to disease and a higher death rate. Other foods of cheaper quality are used. Oleomargarine takes the place of butter. Cold storage eggs are a luxury and fresh eggs unknown, and cheaper brands of canned goods are used.

Aside from food, the big item of expense in the city is rent. In order to keep up with the increased cost of things property owners have been forced to raise rents. The frenzied crowding of the people to the cities has enabled landlords to make these increased rents effective. The result is that a house with a porch and a bit of lawn has become a luxury, and more and more the middle classes, the classes on whom prosperity should react most favorably, have been forced into flats and apartment houses. The poorer classes have moved into tenements. The high cost of room has made crowding inevitable. Human beings have been forced to herd together like cattle or worse. The modern dairy barn is a palace beside some of the tenements that pass muster as human habitations.

Many causes have been advanced by economists and others to account for the rise in prices. Many blame the tariff, but that will not explain why prices are rising nearly as rapidly in England as in the United States. The economist's favorite reason is in the increase in the supply of gold. Money is becoming cheaper, he says, and therefore it takes more of it to buy a given amount of any commodity. This explanation sounds very plausible, but it does not explain the fact that prices have at other times gone down in the face of increased gold production. The gold supply is unquestionably a factor influencing rising prices. That it is the fundamental factor may well be doubted.

Other writers try to lay the whole trouble to the growing extravagance of the American people and to the increased standard of living. It is true that at the present time we regard as necessaries what yesterday were luxuries. This increase in the standard of living is but the product of civilization, however, and is something to be encouraged rather than discouraged. Furthermore, it is responsible in but a small degree for the increase in the cost of living. The increase in the standard of living has manifested itself most strongly in better houses, better clothing and more conveniences. Yet the great increase in cost has been not in these materials, but in food. Between July 1, 1896, and Jan. 1, 1910, breadstuffs and live stock increased in price 108 per cent. During the same period the increase in the textiles was 73 per cent, in metals 65 per cent and in building materials only 15 per cent. That luxurious living has had much to do with the increased prices cannot be denied. That it is wholly responsible is far from the truth.

If we are to seek the real cause of this crisis that confronts our country we must go back to the old cause of supply and demand, coupled with other factors that have grown out of this. The period from 1870 to 1895 was the period of development of the middle west, the bread basket of the world. Here were lands of unparalleled fertility that had merely to be scratched to give forth their bountiful supplies. The result was that the markets of the world were flooded with foodstuffs.

By 1896 the middle west was pretty well settled. The bloom of its virgin fertility had been removed. Soon the days of using corn for fuel and wheat to feed the hogs were past. Prices of farm products began to rise. If there had been no other factor entering in they would soon have reached a normal level, and the readjustment would have come with little trouble. Unfortunately the tide of population toward the cities had become too strong to be turned in a day.

From 1880 to 1900 the percentage of farmers decreased from 44.3 to 35.6, a decrease of 8.7 per cent. During the same period the percentage of persons engaged in manufacturing increased from 21.8 to 24.3. This increase of 2.5 per cent is no more than normal and may be accounted for by the increase in the standard of living and the consequent demand for manufactured articles. The increase in professional lines during this time was eight-tenths of 1 per cent, while the number of persons engaged in domestic and personal service decreased one-tenth of 1 per cent.

The great increase came in the number of persons engaged in trade and transportation, an increase of 5.5 per cent. Of the 16.3 per cent of the working people engaged in trade and transportation in 1900 only nine-tenths were engaged in transportation proper. The others, 15.4 per cent of all the people of the United States who work, were simply middlemen. Complete figures since 1900 are not available, but the cityward trend has increased rather than diminished.

Here is the true explanation of the high cost of living. There are more than one-third as many men engaged in distributing food as there are in producing it. The consumer's dollar is worn thin before it gets to the producer. The 10,000,000 men who farm must supply food to the 7,000,000 people who are working in the factories, to the 12,000,000 people who are doing nonproductive work and to the 46,000,000 people who do not work at all. And because the changed ratio of supply and demand are enabling the farmer to make a profit where before he worked at a loss there is a great outcry over the high cost of living. This outcry will not change things in the least. Neither will boycotts nor anti-meat societies.

There is only one remedy, a reversal of the tide of population. The abnormal growth of cities must be checked. Farming must be restored to its proper place in the industrial world. In the succeeding articles we shall note some of the forces that are bringing this about.

HIS EDITORIAL POLICY.

Mark Twain Made a Clean Breast of It to His Readers.

Mark Twain took the editorial chair on the Buffalo Express in August, 1860, and this is the paragraph in which he made the readers acquainted with his new responsibility:

"I only wish to assure parties having a friendly interest in the prosperity of this journal that I am not going to hurt the paper deliberately and intentionally at any time. I am not going to introduce any startling reform or in any way attempt to make trouble. I am simply going to do my plain, unpretending duty—when I cannot get out of it. I shall work diligently and honestly and faithfully at all times and upon all occasions—when privation and want shall compel me to do so. In writing I shall always confine myself to the truth, except when it is attended with inconvenience. I shall witheringly rebuke all forms of crime and misconduct, except when committed by the party inhabiting my own vest. I shall not make any use of slang or vulgarity upon any occasion or in any circumstances and shall never use profanity except in discussing house rent and taxes. Indeed, upon second thought, I will not even then, for it is inelegant, unChristian and degrading. I shall not often meddle with politics, because we have a political editor who is already excellent and only needs a term in the penitentiary to be perfect. I shall not write any poetry unless I conceive a spite against the subscribers."

TWO WORDS DEFINED.

Difference Between a Sanitarium and a Sanatorium.

The words "sanitarium" and "sanatorium" are popularly understood to have the same meaning and are generally used interchangeably when designating or describing places of refuge for sick people, but there is, in fact, quite a distinction between the meaning of the two words. In answer to a correspondent on this subject the Literary Digest says:

"The distinction between these words lies in the fact that they are derived from two different Latin roots. 'Sanatorium' is derived from the late Latin sanatorius, meaning health giving. The term relates specially to 'an institution for treatment of disease or care of invalids, especially an establishment employing natural therapeutic agents or conditions peculiar to the locality or some specific treatment or treating particular diseases.' On the other hand, 'sanitarium' is derived from the Latin sanitas, from sanus, meaning whole or sound. 'Sanitarium' relates more specifically to 'a place where the hygienic conditions are preservative of health as distinguished from one where therapeutic agencies are employed.' Hence it is [illegible] a 'sanitarium' to preserve health, that of a 'sanatorium' to restore it. Care should be exercised in combining the proper vowels in these two words in order to indicate correctly the derivation."

Teaching the Cutpurses.

Stow in his account of London between 1500 and 1590 depicts an inn kept by a kind of Fagin of the time of Queen Elizabeth: "One Wotton kept an alehouse * * * near Billingsgate, and in the same house he procured all the cutpurses about the city to repair. There was a school set up to learn young boys to cut purses. Two devices were hung up. The one was a pocket, the other was a purse. The pocket had in it certain counters and was hung about with hawk's bells, and over the top did hang a little scaring bell. The purse had silver in it. And he that could take out a counter without any noise was allowed to be a public foyster. And he that could take a piece of silver out of the purse without noise of any of the bells was adjudged a judicial nypper, according to their terms of art. A foyster was a pickpocket; a nypper was a pickpurse or cutpurse."

Tricks Any Husband Can Learn.

To tell yellow from green in matching silk. To wash the dishes without breaking more than two. To keep quiet when he's spoken to. To face the cook when she's angry. To find out what ails the gas range. To stand in line an hour for two trading stamps. To set up his wife's brother in business. To get up winter nights to investigate "robbers." To smile when his old sweethearts' pictures are burned up. To prefer balms at home to billiards at the club. To drop his old friends because they are "vulgar." To give up coffee because it disagrees with his wife.—Puck.

The Old Man's Schedule.

When they asked the Billville youngster what the "old man" was doing now he replied:

"Well, when he ain't talkin' his head off 'bout breakfast bein' late he's a raisin' Cain with the hired hands, an' when he ain't a-doin' of them things he's a-diggin' fer bait an' fishin' in the river an' a-doin' of nuthin' pertickler."—Atlanta Constitution.

Entirely Different.

"It's all very well before a girl's married for her to get a flower in her hair," remarked the observer of events and things, "but it's an entirely different matter if, after she's married, she gets her hair in flour."

Cynical.

"You seem to find your book very interesting, Miss Maidstone."

"Yes; it is one of the most charming stories I have ever read, and so true to life. Every man in it is a villain."

LOVERS BACK IN OTHER DAYS

Mrs. Margaret Loyd Marries a Sweetheart of Her Girlhood Years.

We noted several days ago the visit to our city of Thomas Robinson, of Denver, Col., which now proves to have had greater significance than appeared on the surface.

His marriage on Tuesday, July 12, at Pittsburg to Mrs. Margaret Loyd, of South Centre street this city, explains the object of his visit, and which will no doubt come as a surprise to that lady's friends. When Mr. Robinson departed for his western home, he was accompanied to the Smoky City by Mrs. Loyd, and after being joined in holy wedlock there by a prominent Lutheran clergyman they continued their journey to Denver.

A little romance is connected with the wedding. It appears that back in the halcyon days of yore when both were yet in their teens, they were ardent lovers. When still a young man, Mr. Robinson, who resided in Clearfield county, where he still has relatives, went west to seek his fortune. While neither married for some years, a long separation by many miles finally meant a seeming severance of the ties that had so affectionately bound them together in earlier days. Both eventually married, Mr. Robinson finding a wife in his western home and his old sweetheart, who was Miss Margaret Cross, marrying Robert Loyd, who passed away a few years ago. Mr. Robinson became a widower several years ago, and not long since, finding out the circumstances in connection with the one he loved in his youth, renewed a correspondence long silent, which has resulted in their marriage, and will no doubt mean much real joy to both.

Mrs. Robinson has closed her home here for a couple of months, at which time she and her husband will in all probability return to Philipsburg and make this city their future home. Philipsburg Journal.

Teach the Girls.

One of the best habits a young girl can form is that of keeping an accurate account of her own personal expenses, and the smaller the items the more important to keep account of them. Few people realize how money runs away in litte expenditures of half dimes, dimes and quarters. Even the insignificant penny has a way of counting up that surprises one. Car fares, soda water, ice cream, candy and the money is gone! It is only when one realizes the importance of looking after the little outlays. If the girls were taught to keep an account of every penny they spend, urges the Christian at Work, they would be better prepared to expend their money judiciously when they become wives, housekeepers and providers for families.

Give the girls a regular allowance and then require a strict account to be kept of the way in which it is spent-and in a few years we will hear less about thriftless and extravagant women.

Explaining the Cause.

There were introductions all around. The big man started in a puzzled way, at the club guest, says Cleveland Plain Dealer. "You look like a man I've seen somewhere, Mr. Blinger," he said. "Your face seems very familiar. I fancy you have a double. And a funny thing about it is that I remember I formed a strong prejudice against the man who looks like you-although, I'm quite sure, we have never met."

The little guest softly laughed "I'm the man," he answered, "and I knew why you formed the prejudice. I passed the contribution plate for two years in the church you attended."

The New Art.

A fashionable painter, noted for his prolific output, says the Washington Star, was discussing, at a studio tea in New York, a recent scandal in the picture trade.

"Look here, old man," said G. Innis Kerr, the etcher, "do you paint all your own pictures?"

"I do," the other answered, hotly, "and with my own hands, too."

"And what do you pay your hands?" Mr. Kerr inquired. "I'm thinking of starting an art factory myself."

Most disfiguring skin eruptions, scrofula, pimples rashes etc., are due to impure blood. Burdock Blood Bitters is a cleansing blood tonic. Makes you clear-eyed, clear-brained, clear-skinned.

A Careless Tailor.

The young woman sat plying the needle. A coat of her husband's was in her lap. As the husband appeared, she said, fretfully:

"It is too bad, the careless way the tailor put this button on. This is the fifth time I've had to put it on for you."—Youth's Companion.

Had Good Reason for so Doing, But Landlady Received a Shock.

"In spite of the fact that it's so common these days, it made me uneasy," said the woman who keeps lodgers. "The professional nurse who rooms at my house, the one with a great pile of light brown hair, was called out on an emergency case night before last. When I went up in the morning to do her room I found she had left her hair hanging by the mirror. I thought, of course, she was coming back, or would telephone for it, or send an A. D. T., or something. But the forenoon passed and no word came from the nurse. I kept going up to the room to look at that hair; it seemed to fascinate me; and then it got on my nerves. Don't know why, but I was obsessed that something had happened to the nurse. You know, they are such good lodgers—pay so well and out most of the time—that I take a special interest in them.

"So finally I thought to look in her call book and found that she had left her number. Then I telephoned her. I was a good deal relieved, and a little amused too. You see, she had gone out on a contagious case, and she doesn't wear her best hair at such times—too much trouble to keep it disinfected, she says. But she was grateful to me for calling up. Wouldn't I please put it away in the top bureau drawer. She had not intended to leave it out."

For the Children

A French Poodle Acts as Chauffeur.

The dog members of the Curly Poodle club held an "at home" recently. The miniature motor shown in the picture was a feature of the occasion, with the French poodle Olga, a prize member of the club, acting as chauffeur.

He was a funny looking dog with his tiny beady eyes covered with automobile glasses and his body wrapped in a blanket.

A School For Cats.

"Let's play school," meowed Tabby.

"Yes, let's," answered the others. So they made Tabby teacher, and the fun began. The cats simply wouldn't sit still, and then Farmer Jones' big, fat, juicy chickens kept running up and down, peeping in at the barn door.

"Um, how I'd relish a chicken pie!" whispered Ted to Malty. "Shall we bag school and help ourselves outside?"

"After awhile. We'll watch our chance," replied Malty.

The lesson on the blackboard was "how to catch mice and eat them properly." All was going well until a robin flew into the barn and perched itself saucily on a rafter.

"Meow!" cried Malty. "I want it."

"Meow!" said Ted. "I'm hungry too."

"Silence!" shouted Miss Tabby. "Flossy, leave the room for misconduct."

In a little while, just as Malty and Ted were planning their escape, Flossy came in, carrying a big fat mouse in her mouth.

Presto, change! The schoolroom was transformed into a dining room. Away went books and slates and pencils! Over went benches and desks! On to the mouse went the cats, and in less time than it takes to say "Jack Robinson" poor mouse was a thing of the past.

About Horseshoes.

Horseshoes are lucky hung up over a door because they keep the devil out of the house. It happened in this way: Good St. Dunstan was a famous blacksmith, and the king of evil, who used to travel around the world in person before he became so busy, stopped at the saint's forge one day and asked the blacksmith to put a shoe on his hoof. St. Dunstan knew the person he had to handle. He took the ropes that he used to tie horses with and bound the devil so tightly that that gentleman could not move. Then the saint set to work. The devil roared and screamed as St. Dunstan put a redhot iron shoe over the hoof and pounded it in with long nails. He pleaded with his captor to let him go, promising anything in return.

"If I let you go," said St. Dunstan, "will you promise never to enter a house that has a horseshoe nailed over the door?"

"On my honor as a gentleman I promise," said the devil solemnly, and then St. Dunstan let him go. And from that day to this, so they say, the devil has never entered a house so protected.—Chicago News.

The Scarecrow Game.

A straw figure, completely dressed, is fastened to a tree in such a way that it hangs about a foot from the ground. He must have one arm fastened akimbo to his side and the other hanging free. After the players have had their eyes bandaged and been furnished with a stick the game begins. The object is to thrust the stick through the opening made by the arm which is fastened akimbo. Whoever succeeds in doing so may claim a prize. Of course it often happens that the player misses and receives a light pat for clumsiness from the straw man's hanging arm. If any player misses the goal and passes the naughty straw man the bandage is removed and the player is considered out of the game.

Conundrums.

Why is wit like a Japanese lady's foot? Because brevity is the sole of it.

Why are parliamentary reports called "blue books?" Because they are never re(a)d.

Why is it useless to expect a pretty girl to be candid? Because she cannot be plain.

Why is a well trained horse like a benevolent man? Because he stops at the sound of whoa (woe).

Why is your nose in the middle of your face? Because it is the scenter.

The Stars We Can See.

According to the best astronomers, the number of stars that can be seen by a person of average eyesight is about 7,000. The number visible through the telescope has been estimated to be between 75,000,000 and 80,000,000.

They Were Even.

John Mitchell, the labor leader, told this to the Pittsburg Dispatch:

"Harvey Barr, a successful lawyer, had a wonderful talent for getting the best of people. Even at home he kept his talent in play. His wife said to him one morning:

"'Harvey, dear, this is the fifteenth anniversary of our wedding. What are you going to give me?'

"'This is what I am going to give you,' Harvey answered, affectionately, and he handed his wife $15 in crisp, fresh bills.

"'Oh, thank you!' And what shall I give you?' the gratified wife asked.

"'That Meerschaum pipe I've been admiring so long.' Harvey promptly announced.

"In the evening on his return home the pipe awaited him. It has cost just $15. He lit it up and began to color it carefully.

"But as the evening wore on his wife seemed ill at ease.

"'Where is my present, Harvey?' she said at last, fretfully.

"'Why, my dear,' Harvey exclaimed, 'you gave me a pipe. I gave you $15. Don't you see? We're both even.'"
